

An international seminar on

„Forestry Valuation and Policy Relevance“

Charles University Environment Center

Small Board Room, Carolinum,
December 14, 2007

The aim of the seminar

- Supported by the Czech Ministry of Agriculture
- Application of non-market valuation methods and their policy relevance in the field of forestry
  - a discussion of travel cost method, choice experiment and contingent valuation method
- Examples of current stage of research on valuation of recreation functions of forests in the Czech Republic and abroad
- Policy implication of this type of research for decision-making process

More information

- Proceedings from the seminar
- More information about project on the web site of the Charles University Environment center:

<http://cozp.cuni.cz>

